STUDIO CARICATURES

Guide to Spot-On Caricatures

There are three levels of caricature to choose from - black and white with grey tones, black and white with a 'spot colour', or a full colour caricature.

There are also three types of caricature - the traditional portrait, the 'gag' caricature (where the artist builds in a joke), or a cartoon strip where your character features in an amusing story.

In commissioning a caricature, the more information and photographs you can provide us with, the better the finished cartoon will be.

We need...

- a minimum of three good photographs of their head and shoulders (preferably full face, half face and side face)
- a minimum of one full body photograph
- a list of their hobbies, interests, obsessions and quirks that people josh them about
- if you have a specific idea of how you want the 'victim' to be depicted, so much the better. You know them; we don't.
